

About Us

Green Building magazine, which started its publication in 2010, includes products and technologies, production and application techniques for the green building construction process, certified by world-wide accepted standards, and opinions and management approaches on this subject, aiming to ensure that buildings consume minimum fossil fuels and water, reduce carbon emissions and waste. It was prepared with content about production in a way that would cause least harm to the environment and was published four issues a year. It has been operating as a web portal since the beginning of 2023.
